

MAKING SCHOLARSHIP PUBLIC SERIES

The Samuel DeWitt Proctor Institute for Leadership, Equity and Justice will host a series of virtual workshops that will offer best practices on making scholarship more accessible to the general public. Each session will focus on a different method to extend the reach of your research.

- Writing Opinion Pieces: This session will offer steps for crafting op-eds for a wider audience.
- Turning Your Research Into a Policy/Practice/Research Report: This hands-on session will offer insight into how to turn scholarship into a comprehensive and accessible report that attracts readers beyond an academic audience.
- Engaging Media with your Research: This session will offer strategies to establish relationships with media personnel and will teach participants how to best pitch their research to the press.

FALL 2020 WEBINARS

Thursday, September 24th

1:00 - 2:30 PM

Writing Opinion Pieces

Thursday, October 15th

1:00 - 2:30 PM

Turning Your Research Into a Report

Thursday, October 29th

1:00 - 2:30 PM

Engaging the Media with your Research

All workshops are free to Rutgers GSE students, faculty, and staff, as well as the general public. All workshops will be held virtually.

For more info, please contact Brandy Jones at brandy.jones@gse.rutgers.edu.